

DEATH OF EX.-INSP. MARSH

Collapse on Way to Church

While on his way to morning service at St. Paul's Church, Cambridge, yesterday, ex-Insp. Lazarus Marsh, of 48, Covent-garden, collapsed and later died, in hospital.

Mr. Marsh, who was a sidesman at St. Paul's, where he had worshipped for many years, was overcome in Hills-road near the church. He was removed to Addenbrooke's Hospital, where he died early in the afternoon.

Born in 1854 at West Wrattling, he came to Cambridge on joining the Borough Police Force in 1875. In April, 1892, he was appointed a detective-constable, and six years later was promoted detective-sergeant. On April 6th, 1920, he was promoted to the rank of inspector. He retired a few weeks afterwards, on April 30th, 1920.

On his retirement he received a public presentation from many friends in the town who appreciated his work.

He had lived at 48, Covent-garden for about 50 years. His wife died some years ago, but his two children—a son, Mr. B. P. Marsh, and a daughter, Mrs. Squires, wife of ex-P.S. Squires—survive him.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at St. Paul's.
